Mark Twain Lake Announces Where's that Water Safety Message? Challenge

August 1, 2012, Mark Twain Lake – The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Mark Twain Lake recently put up a new water safety message with the Wear It emblem on the project grounds. The emblem is utilized by the National Safe Boating Council all over the country to encourage those participating in water recreation activities to always wear a life jacket. The sign the staff put up at Mark Twain Lake is hard to miss. It's large, colorful and emphasizes for our visitors to always wear their life jacket while boating on Mark Twain Lake. But where is it at? Not that you need another reason for a trip to Mark Twain Lake but take this opportunity to drive or boat around the lake area and keep your eyes peeled for this large sign. When you spot it, note its location. Afterwards, stop by the M.W. Boudreaux Memorial Visitor Center between August 6th and August 26th and notify a Ranger as to where it's located. If you're one of the first 500 people to let us know where you spotted the sign, your prize will be a water bottle to help you stave off thirst during this hot, dry weather we're having. Even though the sign with the water safety message is right out in the open, if for some reason you can't find it, at least you got a scenic trip to Mark Twain Lake!

The M.W. Boudreaux Memorial Visitor Center is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily and is located just south of the Clarence Cannon Dam on Rt. J. For more information, please email marktwaininfo@usace.army.mil or call 573-735-4097.
