Slithering Sunday at National Great Rivers Museum

ALTON, IL – Serengeti Steve, locally known as “The Reptile Man,” is coming to Alton this Sunday from 1:00 – 3:00 with a swarm of creepy-crawly critters in tow. This program is offered at no cost as part of the National Great Rivers Museum’s summer series, Sunday Funday, held every 2nd Sunday, now through September.

All ages are invited to see Serengeti Steve’s Reptile Experience, involving 8-10 animals, like snakes, lizards, tarantulas, insects, and scorpions. The presentation is packed with audience involvement

This is the second program in the Sunday Funday summer program series, presented by the Meeting of the Rivers Foundation. Meet at the National Great Rivers Museum on the second Sunday of each summer month, now through September, to enjoy some quality time with the whole family!

The National Great Rivers Museum is located at 2 Lock and Dam Way, East Alton, IL 62024, just off Route 143, 2 miles east of the Clark Bridge. Call (618) 462-6979 for more information.
